Silver Gets Cardozo Award

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio, Zionist leader, received the Cardozo Memorial Award given annually by Tau Epsilon Rho, national law fraternity, to an individual who has made "an outstanding contribution to the American way of life."

The presentation was made by State Supreme Court Justice Isadore Bookstein, head of the fraternity, at a dinner in New York as part of the organization's thirteenth annual convention. The award, consisting of a plaque and a specially bound volume of the works of the late Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, was made to Rabbi Silver for his leadership in helping to create the State of Israel.

Rabbi Silver praised the role of American Jewry in helping to bring Israel into being, declaring that without this assistance "the State of Israel would not have been established." He said there is still much that American Jewry must do to help the new state. Among Israel's problems, whose solution requires continued aid, he said, are the Jerusalem question, Israel's boundaries, Arab refugees, and helping to finance migration to Israel.

American Jews and those in all other countries, he said, are in turn benefitting from the creation of Israel.

"The establishment of the State of Israel," he said, "will have great significance for the Jewish people through the world. It will tend to

U.J.A. To Be Run By Cabinet Of 14

With the aim of decentralizing the United Jewish Appeal campaign for 1950, Henry Morgenthau, general chairman, announced the formation of a national campaign cabinet of fourteen Jewish leaders. This cabinet, he said, will "give us a campaign high command of tried and proved communal leadership which will be most important for the success of our effort." The appeal is the combined fund-raising agency for the Joint Distribution Committee.

"For 1950", Mr. Morgenthau said, "the United Jewish Appeal will have an entirely new campaign structure designed to draw into its innermost circle the most vital and the most devoted elements of American Jewry. It will give the widest possible representation to thousands of Jewish communities from coast to coast which form the backbone of its great fund-raising activity in behalf of the continued development and mass settlement of Israel, the rehabilitation of the Jewish people in Europe and North Africa and the integration of newcomers in the United States."

Members of the cabinet are:

Herbert R. Abeles, Newark, member of the New Jersey Governor's Commission on Displaced Persons; Morris W. Berinstein, Syracuse; Louis Berry, Detroit; Charles Brown, Los Angeles; Eddie Cantor, radio, stage and screen star; Joseph Cherner, Washington, member of the Washington Community Chest drive; Samuel H. Daroff, Philadelphia, president of the Alli-

Baby-Minding Plan Shows Jewish-Gentile Harmony

An exchange plan of baby sitting is being developed in the veterans' community of Levittown, Long Island, N.Y., to allow Jewish and Christian parents to attend their respective religious services.

The proposed Jewish-Christian cooperative plan is scheduled to go into effect. More than 100 people have already indicated they will participate, according to Harry Kasden, president of the Israel Community Center. He and Rabbi Saul Leeman, leader of the center, devised the plan.

Under it, a Christian family will baby-sit on Friday nights for a Jewish family that wishes to attend services. The Jewish family will in turn sit for the Christian family during Sunday morning services. In the past at least one member of each family with an infant has had to forego religious services.

"Proof of the pudding will be in how long the project lasts," Mr. Kasden said. Families living in the same neighborhoods will be paired off to facilitate the exchange operations. Other factors are being developed to make the plan more attractive and insure its permanency. An over-all purpose is to strengthen the religious fiber of the entire community and to promote stronger unity among the 40,000 residents.

Until a few months ago, only veterans could buy or rent homes at Levittown, making this the largest veterans' housing project in the country. Veterans still receive preference on the long waiting lists. The harmony between Jews and Christians was especially evident during the holiday season. In each of the three schools the story of Chanukah was read to every class along with the story of Christmas. This was done in response to a formal request made

Blind To Operate Village In Israel

A village to be operated and managed entirely by blind persons and their families is being established in Israel and is expected to be self-supporting in three months, it was reported by Henry Morgenthau jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, which is seeking $272,455,800 in 1950, to aid the immigration of Jews to Israel and distressed Jews elsewhere throughout the world.

It is expected that the village will be populated by 400 or 500 persons, of whom 100 are blind. The total cost of establishing the village has been set at $125,000, which includes provision of $85 a month for each family during the rehabilitation period. Six instructors are now training blind persons in various aspects of independent living, including the making of brushes, ceramics and upholstery.

The settlement, at Gedera in southern Judea, includes a grocery store, a restaurant, a community center and sixty truck farms, all of which are to be operated by the blind.

Caring for the blind is one phase of the larger problem of finding work where possible for additional thousands of persons suffering physical or mental illness as a result of treatment in German concentration camps or because they have lived in squalid, unsanitary conditions in North Africa. The Israeli policy is to admit any Jew regardless of his age or physical condition.

Examination at typical reception camps show that eight per cent of the new immigrants have tuberculosis and that trachoma is widespread. A little more that 10 per cent of the thousands of immigrants pouring into Israel each month are fifty years old or older.

Another step in the integration of invalids into the community is the requirement that for every sixty healthy families placed on a settlement, a grocery store operated by a handicapped person must be set up. Similarly, for every eight families, an invalid receives an opportunity to operate a vegetable stand. All soft-drink stands in the country are operated by handicapped persons.

The Joint Distribution Committee, one of the beneficiaries of the United Jewish Appeal, the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Israeli government, have united to provide $15,000,000 to aid seriously ill persons who require treatment in hospitals and rehabilitation centers.

Jewish Frat Paves Way For Negro Members

In a major move aimed at breaking down racial and religious discrimination in Greek-letter fraternities, Phi Sigma Delta, a national Jewish social fraternity with nearly 6,000 members and twenty-four college chapters, paved the way for the admission of Negro members.

Meeting behind closed doors at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York, delegates to the fortieth anniversary convention adopted a resolution that "no male undergraduate shall be denied membership in Phi Sigma Delta fraternity solely because of his race, color or creed." Only two chapters—Lambda of the University of Texas and Alpha Zeta of the University of Miami — opposed the resolution.

As a result it appears certain that at least one Negro student will be inducted into the fraternity, probably next month. He is Weathers Sykes, a 23-year-old University of Wisconsin senior, whose pledging last spring by Pi Chapter raised the issue.

Mr. Sykes' admission would be only the third time that a Negro had been inducted in a non-Negro national fraternity, according to an official of the National Interfraternity Conference. However, this would be the first significant action since the conference's November meeting, at which the question of breaking down discriminatory bars was left largely to the individual fraternities.

After adopting the resolution delegates and fraternity officials successfully fought a motion which, in effect, would nullify the resolution by means of an unwritten "gentleman's agreement." An alumnus member of the executive council urged that the chapters should not "rush, pledge and initiate — with the exception of Sykes—any [illegible] for the convention." This, it was said, would enable the fraternity to judge outside reaction and safeguard it from making hasty moves.

Speakers emphasized that the fraternity would continue as a Jewish organization, although it would accept qualified non-Jews, including Negroes, who wished to join. At present the fraternity has Gentile members and some chapters are virtually non-sectarian.

Although the majority of chapters approved of Mr. Sykes' admis-

COLLEGE ACCEPTS, THEN REFUSES, LEGACY BIASED AGAINST CATHOLICS, JEWS

The trustees of Lafayette College voted to refuse a legacy of $140,000 left by one of its graduates, Frederick Theodore Frelinghuysen Dumont, a State Department career officer, because of a provision in the bequest that none of the money could be used to finance scholarship for students of either Catholic or Jewish faiths, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Mr. Dumont, who died June 4, 1939, left the money to the general endowment of Lafayette, a scientific college at Easton, Pa. The provision in question was to become operative only if the president, now Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, allotted any of the funds to scholarships.

Because of various legal difficulties, Mr. Dumont's will has been tied up in the courts for ten years. The bequest to Lafayette, with its conditions, became known only last week, when Judge John L. Bowman, in Orphans Court at Lancaster, Pa., approved the distribution of $13,000 in accumulated funds to the college.

The trustees met at the University Club in New York. Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of International Business Machines Corporation and vice-chairman of trustees of Lafayette, presided. At the close of the meeting, Dr. Hutchison issued a statement.

"With the court's initial allocation of funds from the Dumont estate," Dr. Hutchison said, "the trustees have had occasion for the first time to consider this generous bequest of approximately $140,000. While the proceeds were to have been used for general endowment, the fact remains that the legacy contains an inoperative clause discriminating against Jews and Catholics.

"The board has therefore taken action declining the legacy as containing intimations of discrimination which are contrary to the history, practice and ideals of Lafayette College. Lafayette enrollment has always included large numbers of Jews and Catholics and many of its distinguished alumni are among them."

The table was arranged with pom-poms, carnations, and daffodils. There were about thirty-five guests present. Mrs. Goodkin received them, in a black crepe dress; with Mrs. Rabinovitch, mother of the groom, in a grey crepe dress. Miss Goodkin wore a purple velvet dress, with a corsage of pink roses. Miss Sophie Goodkin, sister of the bride, of New York, was present. The following evening, Mr. and Mrs. Goodkin entertained friends of the bride and groom. There were about twenty guests present. Miss Goodkin wore a blue taffeta dress, with a corsage of pink roses.

Philip Dankner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dankner, 5264 Waverley Street, was called to the Reading of the Law at Beth Hillel Synagogue. He is the brother of Mrs. Carl Arron, of Halifax, N. S.; Mrs. M. Gillman, and Miss Ruth Dankner, both of 5264 Waverley Street. Kiddush followed the ceremony. There was a dinner reception at home that evening and the following evening with one hundred guests present for both occasions. There were variegated floral decorations in the house, and roses, carnations, and ferns on the table. Philip spoke. S. B. Schwartz, Van Horne Avenue, was toastmaster for the first evening and Issie Farber, Maplewood Avenue, for the second evening. Out-of-town guests present were Philip's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Arron, and son, Alvin Howard, of Halifax, N.S.

Philip Weinstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Weinstein, 403 St. Joseph Boulevard West, was called to the Reading of the Law at the Ukrainian Synagogue. He is the brother of Saul, Sydney, and Melvin. There was a dinner reception in the evening at Bnai Jacob Synagogue, with one hundred and sixty guests present. There were variegated flowers on the head table, and the bar-mitzvah cake was in the shape of a book. Mrs. Weinstein wore a green crepe gown, with beaded neckline, and a corsage of white and pink roses. The parents escorted the bar-mitzvah boy for the lighting of the candles. Melvin, aged five, a brother of Philip, carried the talith. Bernard Grad, 4621 St. Urbain Street, spoke, and Sydney, a brother of the bar-mitzvah, was toastmaster. Philip spoke in Jewish. Out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Kreitman, Mrs. H. Millman, Mrs. H. Kushner, Mrs. A. Appelman, all of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Silverberg, of Venice, Calif.

Miss Anita Godfrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Godfrey, 5044 Clark Street, and fiancee of Harry Shapiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Shapiro, 6415 Papineau Avenue, who will be married on January 15, was entertained by her sisters, Misses Yetta and Fanny Godfrey, Clark Street, and Mrs. J. Slutsky, Esplanade Avenue, at the Bucharest; by Mrs. L. A. Shapiro, Melrose Avenue, sister-in-law of the groom-elect, at a dinner presentation; Mrs. Percy Shapiro, Esplanade Avenue, sister-in-law of the groom-elect, at a tea presentation; Mesdames I. The Exodus Of An Entire Community With A History Of 2,000 Years

By Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, World Jewish Congress Consultant To The United Nations

The Jewish community in the various territories which constitute Libya dates back to Biblical times. Tripoli has become the port of exit for the many Jewish communities which two or three years ago had been situated in all parts of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica. Only a handful of Jews remain in Benghazi, the capital of Cyrenaica, while a score or more of Jewish communities in the interior of Tripolitania have been totally evacuated.

Thousands of people have streamed into the ancient ghetto of Tripoli, and are being steadily and systematically transported from that city to Israel. This extraordinary phenomenon, the exodus of an entire community with a history of two thousand years, has escaped the notice of the Western world, chiefly because the American press is completely unrepresented in Tripoli.

The significance of this extraordinary exodus for the forthcoming discussions on the former Italian colonies has been lost to public opinion in the Western world. I can put the situation with brutal simplicity. The Jews, and this applies also to other minorities, are completely without confidence in the proposed arrangements for the future of these territories which have emerged from the discussions among several of the great powers.

If any thought has been given to the problem of human rights or to the protection of minorities, no evidence of it has appeared in any of the statements which have been made. The great powers seem to be concerned only with questions of sovereignty and strategy. The question is now being asked in these colonies, and not by Jews alone, whether the Western advocacy of human rights is only a tactical incident in the 'cold war', or whether it represents an integral part of the policy of Western democratic powers.

This skepticism springs from a tragic experience. During the past few years, the Jews of Tripolitania have twice been subjected to murderous and unprovoked assaults. What will happen when the troops of the occuping power leave ? Last May I twice warned the Political Committee of the United Nations, in the clearest language, of the dangers of the situation and asked for measures for the protection of minorities in accordance with the provisions of the Chapter. The Jews of Tripolitania know that Britain and the United States were among the powers that opposed my right to appear before the Political Committee. Although this opposition was unsuccessful, the resolutions which were finally submitted to the General Assembly were totally devoid of any proposals for the protection of minorities. It is small wonder that Jewish communities in the interior have abandoned or destroyed the properties and institutions which they have built up over centuries and have decided to go while the going is good.

It is a devasting commentary on the failure of the United Nations, under the leadership of the great powers, to safeguard the rights of minority groups. And this is one case in which the United Nations, under the leadership of democratic powers, has a complete and unfettered opportunity to safeguard these rights. In the name of these otherwise defenseless people, I make a most solemn appeal to democratic statesmanship to take steps before it is too late to repair this wrong.

On the day following my arrival, I visited the great synagogue in the ancient ghetto, among other institutions. There was no announcement, but the news of my arrival had quickly spread through the ghetto. The synagogue was packed from floor to ceiling, and I had to fight my way through the narrow streets jammed by thousands of people who were unable to get in.

After short speeches by Dr. Raffaele Cantoni, the head of the Union Italian Jewish Communities in Rome who had accompanied me, and myself, we made our way out of the synagogue. Surrounded by civil Jewish police, we forced our way slowly through the narrow packed streets of the ghetto in a procession which I was told was without precedence. Jews from all parts of the country, some in European and others in native costume and many wearing the picturesque and colorful costume of the mountain Jews of the interior, greeted us with a roar of welcome which I shall never forget.

As we moved slowly down the streets, the crowds on the roofs and balconys sprinkled us with perfumed water, the local equivalent of New York's ticker tape. High above the cheering and the characteristic oriental cries of jubilation of women could be heard the steady rhythmic cry of a single word, "Aliyah," "Aliyah," "Aliyah".

The "Aliyah" means immigration to Israel. It is written up on every wall in Hebrew and Latin characters, it represents the main activity of Jewish communities, it embodies a whole philosophy and represents to what now amounts to a religion.

The Jews of Tripoli, including thousands from Cyrenaica and the interior of Tripolitania, are now organized with this one object in view. I cannot too highly praise the work which is being done by the representatives of the Jewish Agency, the Joint Distribution Committee, the OSE (The Jewish Health Organization), and similar bodies in order to prepare and facilitate this immigration.

Virtually the whole of the Jewish community is organized with this end in view. Thousands of travel documents have been prepared in cooperation with the British Administration, a regular system of food-rationing distribution has been set up.

A thousand people receive treatment for trachoma alone every day. Kindergarten schools and training centers are in operation, transportation has been organized from the port, so that on an average of two thousand people leave the port every month for Israel with the necessary identity documents, health guards, and clothing which enable them to start a new and healthful life in Israel.

The whole of this enormous labor is accomplished under expert leadership with the help of hundreds of local volunteers and with financial help from the United States, which amounts on an average to $100,000 a month. This money, which comes originally from the United Jewish Appeal, is administered with magnificent efficiency by the American Joint Distribution Committee and the Jewish Agency using existing institutions wherever possible.

This movement has been made possible by the realism of the British Chief Administrator, Brigadier Hackett. It is not that he wishes the Jews to leave. On the contrary, he knows that it entails the loss of invaluable human material, skills, and economic competence to a territory not too plentifully endowed. But he realizes that in the circumstances this movement has become inevitable, and he does all he can to facilitate it within his limited powers and opportunities.

I should like to pay a warm tribute of respect to this genial and cultivated Irishman, for Tripoli, like New York, is governed by an Irishman, whose judgment I strongly suspect has not been given due weight in international counsels. While the rest of the world, preoccupied with questions of international strategy, have ignored the problem, he has at least made it possible for the Jews of Tripolitania to work out their own solution in their own way.

Musician At 100 Heads Family Of Musicians

One hundred and sixty elderly residents of the Warschauer Haym Salomon Home for the Aged at 136 Second Avenue on the lower East Side of New York, lifted their wine cups high in tribute to a close friend and fellow-resident, Isaac Fishberg. For Isaac became 100 years old and his birthday fell on the eve of Chanukah, the Feast of Lights.

There are several distinctions in the life of Isaac Fishberg, but his proudest, is that he is the oldest member of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians. And when his friends sat down for the anniversary dinner they were joined by no less than 151 of Isaac's descendants, foremost of whom were his six sons, each a prominent musician.

The celebrant put aside temporarily his favorite composers, Beethoven and Chopin—and with good reason. James C. Petrillo, president of the musicians' union, arranged to send a small symphonic ensemble to the home to play in honor of Mr. Fishberg. The principal work on the program was "Hatikvah" Zionist anthem. He requested that song. "It is Israel's song of hope", he said.

It might be noted that one-third of Isaac's descendants hold cards in Local 802, says the New York Times. And as Isaac, himself speaking in Yiddish, put it, "From my family I can put together the finest and largest string section in the land".

Seated in a deep easy chair, his bright tie glistening in the overhead light, his blue eyes sparkling, the old musician fondled the flute in his hand and said: "My six sons can easily become a superb string sextet, but, of course, I can play the flute as a soloist". He still plays the flute and the violin, both of which he taught until about twenty years ago, when he retired.

He listed his sons. There was Mischa Mischakoff (professional name), who is the concertmaster of Arturo Toscanini's NBC Symphony orchestra; Fishel, double bass player; Nathan, violinist; Tobias, viola player; Yasha, violinist, and William, amateur violinist who is in the jewelry business. All, with the exception of William, have played with the outstanding symphonic orchestras in America and abroad.

The centenarian apologized for not playing his flute. The mouthpiece was broken but a new one has been promised as a birthday present. Every day until bedtime he stays near the radio, listening to favorite compositions by Beethoven, Chopin and Mozart.

"If I have to live my life over again, music again would will it," he said. "What can be more beautiful than music, any kind of music".

Mr. Fishberg was born in Proskurov in the Ukraine section of Russia and came to the U.S. shortly after the first World War —several years after his children arrived. He entered the home last year. Right now he is excited about the home's tentative plans to construct another building for the aged in Brooklyn at a cost of $1,500,000. He is also the home's strongest supporter of its current membership drive, of which the fees are used for the maintenance of the home.

Everyone's sense of well-being and his ability to work effectively depend to some extent on a nutritious diet. If we want to be healthy and strong, if we want to feel right, we must eat right. Eating right means eating a variety of foods which should include each day, milk, fruit, vegetables, cereals and meat.

Head Of Chain Store Began As Cutter

Henry C. Marks, seventy, one of the founders of the Howard Stores Corporation, operating a chain of clothing stores, died in New York at Doctors Hospital, East End Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street, after a long illness. He lived at 115 Central Park West.

Mr. Marks, born on the lower East Side, began his career in the clothing business as a designer and cutter for the now defunct firm of Moscowitz and Company. In 1916 he set up as a manufacturer of men's clothing in partnership with a salesman of the Moscowitz firm named Samuel Keppel under the name of Keppel and Marks. In 1925 this firm joined with Joseph Langerman, who had a men's apparel store in Brooklyn, to establish the retailing and manufacturing concern of Howard Clothes. The corporation now operates forty-five stores in New York and other cities throughout the United States.

Mr. Marks served as vice-president, treasurer, and director of the company and was in charge of all manufacturing and styling phases of the business. He had been active in the firm up to two years ago when failing health caused him to ease up.

Mr. Marks had been technical adviser to the Quartermaster General of the Army during World War II. He was a founder and director of the New York Clothing Manufacturing Exchange and the Clothing Manufacturers Association of the United States. He was active in many civic and charitable organizations.

Mrs. S. A. Brailove, New Jersey civic leader, has been named chairman of the National Women's Division of the United Jewish Appeal, it was announced by Henry Morgenthau Jr., general chairman. Mrs. Brailove succeeds Mrs. Ernest G. Wadel of Dallas, Texas, who was killed in a plane crash at Dallas as she was returning from the national conference of the Appeal at Atlantic City, N.J. Mrs. Brailove founded the Urban League in Elizabeth, N.J., and is a director of the Elizabeth Jewish Council.

DEVELOPMENTS IN JEWISH EDUCATION

By Dr. Uriah Zevi Engelman, Director, Department of Research And Information, American Association For Jewish Education

Total enrollment in all Jewish schools (Sunday, weekday afternoon, Yiddish, and all-day) in the spring of 1949 was 255,865. Of this number, Sunday Schools had 128,719 (52.3%); weekday schools, 122,109 (47.7%). The combined figures represent an increase of 6.9% over 1948 enrollments. Both Sunday and the weekday schools shared in the increase.

Sunday schools jumped their 1948 enrollment of 120,896 by 6.5%; weekday schools added 3% to the 1948 figure of 118,502. The weekday school enrollment consisted of 82,848 attending afternoon Hebrew schools (congregational and non-congregational), 18,654 attending all-day schools and about 17,000 attending Yiddish schools.

The number of seminary-graduated qualified teachers did not keep pace with the growth in enrollment. As a consequence a very large number of classes throughout the country are staffed with sub-standard teachers. Also, schools which carry on less intensive programs and which, in the past, have utilized unlicensed teachers have benefited by the increase in enrollment more than the intensive type of schools which insist on employing trained teachers.

The increased number of students is reflected largely in attendance at Sunday schools, the two and three-day a week congregational schools and the kindergartens and the early grades of the all-day schools. The latter, though part of the most intensive type of Jewish school, have been receiving increasing numbers of children even though adequate provision for teachers could not be made. Of almost 5,000 children enrolled in the winter of 1948 in the Jewish all-day schools outside New-York City, more than one third (38.5%) were massed in the kindergarten classes.

The number of students studying Hebrew in the public high schools, according to Judah Lapson of the Jewish Culture Council of New York, has grown steadily during the past decade. In 1939 the Hebrew classes had an enrollment of 2,400. In 1949, there were 3,970, an increase of 65.4%. During this period the number enrolled for all foreign language courses in the New York public high schools decreased from 150,000 to slightly over 88,000.

What influence will emergence of the state of Israel have on Jewish education? The consensus of Jewish educational thought foresees two important developments: 1) an increasing spiritual and cultural inter-relationship between American Jewry and Israel; 2) a more generally optimistic attitude to life and man's efforts on the part of Jewish educational workers. The widespread belief is that educational philosophy, which was colored in gruesome Nazi-war years with deep pessimism, will regain some of its faith in the ultimate outcome of mens aspirations and destiny, and that this will be reflected in the development of the Jewish school.

As for immediate developments: From a number of communities, (Los Angeles, Chicago, Baltimore, Duluth, St. Paul, Buffalo, Syracuse, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Memphis) came news of local and regional teachers' conferences at which the problem of revision of the Jewish school curriculum in the light of the new position of the Jewish people in the world was the main theme of discussion.

Out of 110 communities canvassed, 54 reported an increase in the study of Hebrew, and in 42 of these communities in conversational Hebrew intended for prospective visitors to Israel. From a number of cities come reports of enhanced interest in Israeli geography, history, the United Nations, and the social problems of the State of Israel. The events in Israel have stimulated the use of audio-visual aids in most schools.

Influences bearing on inter-educational relationship between Israel and the United States are also apparent. Several educational workshops and seminars were held in Israel for American students and teachers. Among the more important ones were the workshop on Palestine life and culture given in Israel by the New York University School of Education in cooperation with the Katzenelson Institute of Social Studies, in Israel. Also a seminar for American teachers and principals was held in Jerusalem under the auspices of the Hebrew University and the World Union for Jewish Education.

A significant development in Jewish education has been the growth throughout the country of parent-teacher groups. A study by the American Association for Jewish Education revealed that in 83 communities 446 schools reported parent teacher associations.

American Jewish leadership is coming to realize that financing of Jewish education is a community responsibility and cannot be borne by the parents alone, or even by the congregations alone, and that it must be borne by all the elements in the community. A concrete expression of this awareness is the increasing number of Federations and Welfare Funds which have been annually allocating funds for Jewish education.

In 1936, twenty-nine cities reported Federation and Welfare Funds allocations for Jewish education, in 1947, fifty-three cities reported such allocations. In 1936 the Federation subventions for Jewish education amounted to $523,749 or 6.13% of the total sum spent by the Federations for all local needs. In 1947 the amount subvented for Jewish education by the Federation was $2,181,417, or 8.79% of the total budgeted by Federations for all local needs.

The amount of money allocated for Jewish education through Federation and Welfare Funds has increased proportionately faster than the amount of money allocated through the same channels for "all local needs".

The Bezalel Museum

By Jeannette Simcha Van Vriesland

(Editor's Note: Jeannette Van Vriesland wrote this piece shortly before she was killed on the last convoy to pass Latrun. Her husband, the Netherlands Consul General, was also at one time treasurer of the Jewish Agency and, before his death, the manager and the spirit behind the Tel Aviv Port.)

There is in Jerusalem a lively tradition for Shabbat mornings: people go to the Bezalel Museum, set in an old garden in the heart of the town. The Museum is now in its 40th year of existence. It was Prof. Boris Schatz who, in the early days of Zionism, decided that if ever there was to be a Jewish national home, it should have its centre of art. He founded the "Bezalel" in Jerusalem, which was at the same time the nucleus of a Museum, containing what few pictures Schatz had collected from his friends, and a School of Arts and Crafts, where young people were taught art and the woodcarver's and silversmith's crafts. The Yemenite silver filigree work and the objects of local olive wood furnished the examples which Schatz taught his pupils to adapt to modern Western use.

Schatz, a great pioneer, died after the first World War. The Bezalel School which he had founded degenerated, the pupils all left it, and silver filigree work and olive wood were manufactured in mass production and exported to all countries, especially America where these objects — which now have nothing to do with the Bezalel — are still known as "Bezalel work".

But in 1935 the Zionist Organization, which had acquired the ownership of the Bezalel, appointed a committee to reorganise this important national institution. A separation between the Bezalel Museum and the Bezalel School of Arts and Crafts was effected, both institutions took on capable and energetic directors and have developed side by side.

The Bezalel Museum's director is Mr. Narkiss. He sees the task of the institution — as of any modern Museum — not only to offer proper space to collections but to be a vital factor in the cultural life of the people. The exhibitions in the Bezalel are always interesting and attract large crowds. At one time the exhibition may be of Old Dutch Art, another time of Jewish painters of the last two centuries — of Yemenite hand-weavings and embroideries, or of Jewish family portraits. Through such exhibitions, and through their manifold activities in the field of Art and Education, the Museum has developed into one of our important cultural institutions.

An interesting feature of the Museum's programme is its annual Exhibition of Arts and Crafts. In the tastefully decorated stands where all the foremost craftsmen of the country display their latest creations, one can make a survey of what the country produces and what progress was made in pottery, in handwoven materials, in leatherwork and bookbinding, in jewellery and in silversmith's work.

The initiative in this annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition was taken some four years ago. It came at the right moment: at a turning point in the development of crafts, which in a small country like Palestine is an important item of production and export.

Our modern crafts, for the greater part, are an inheritance of persecution: they have been introduced by the immigrants from Germany and Austria. When once the history of our homeland will be written, it will be said that agriculture was established mainly by the settlers from Russia and Eastern Europe. But the German "Aliya" brought to the country such highly skilled trades as production of ladies-clothing and leather accessories. Almost all the branches displayed at the Exhibition: pottery, bookbinding, metalwork, even most of the weaving, have been brought to the country by the German immigrants of 1933 and afterwards.

This fact of course, makes itself felt. The traditions prevailing in a craft are not so easily stripped off, certainly not if they were such excellent traditions of thorough craftsmanship as Germany used to have. For we should not forget that Germany, from the time of the Middle Ages, has always been the country par excellence of fine craftsmanship.

Palestine craftsmen are of German tradition. But the impact of their new Oriental surroundings made them change their course, as is most clearly and instructively demonstrated by the annual Bezalel exhibitions. From year to year we follow the craftsmen's struggle to strip off their European traditions, to detach themselves from the German background, to assimilate the forms and traditions of their new Mediterranean surroundings.

For, to say that Palestine is an Oriental country is to misjudge its character. In its flora and fauna, in its art and cultural traditions, in fact in its geographical position Palestine is a Mediterranean country. From olden times on the peoples around the Mediterranean Sea have had common traditional shapes in the objects of daily use, such as the graceful oil jugs of blue Hebron glass which are found in exactly the same shape in the Provence in Southern France. Another example are the ancient oil-lamps of the same shape in Greece and in Judea.

It is the similarity of Nature and its products, of fruit and food and climate in the countries around the Mediterranean which leads to the unity in style and shape of things of daily use. And it is the things of daily use brought into beautiful shape by artists and craftsmen which are displayed in the Bezalel's yearly exhibition.

It is most interesting to observe how the different craftsmen, the potters, the weavers, the bookbinders and printers are passing through the process of "De-Westernisation". A leading potter, Hedwig Grossmann, shows in her vases and pots a strong tendency towards Greek models, in shape as well as in decoration. An ancient Judean oil lamp was used as a model for one recently shown; and a Greek vase inspired a charming modern Chanukkiah. Something quite new is shown by "Kad Vesefel", a potter's workshop in Rishon le Zion, which also originated many good bowls and vases. Their novelty was a "mural tableau" representing the Jacob's leader, white angels hovering over the sleeping Jacob.

Such murals will be beautiful decorations for schools and public buildings. Another new and very modern feature shown was the first stained glass windows. This beautiful technique adorning famous European cathedrals like Chartres and Gouda, would find a fitting application in the sunny Palestine climate.

Jewellery, this year, did not put up a big show. But a newly introduced technique of French tradition was shown by A. Meirsimans in his jewellery box of precious wood with panels of exquisite enamel work.

Weaving is the most widespread of crafts in Palestine. There is scarcely a Kibbutz or a Bet Chalutzot which has not its weaving workshop. Ahouva Yellin-Picard has been the pathfinder in this field. She has studied modern techniques of weaving in Europe and back in Palestine has adapted them more and more to Oriental patterns, and has trained many Yemenite Jews in this ancient Jewish trade. A spate of excellent weavers has followed in her footsteps. At the Exhibition we see how they strive to unite European technique with Oriental patterns, usually with happy results.

Bookbinding and bookprinting are crafts of old standing in the Galut. Jews have of old been amongst the foremost printers, especially in Italy and in Amsterdam. What is shown here of bookbinding is of high standing. And the book "Songs of Rachel", all written and bound in parchment by Miryam Kluger-Caroli is a work of art of the best standard.

As soon as one Exhibition is over, another is on. The Bezalel Museum is a bulwark in the cultural life.

To Aid Able Victims Of Bias In U. S.

John Hay Whitney, of New York, announced the establishment of the John Hay Whitney Foundation of Opportunity Fellowships with an appropriation of $100,000 for the first year. The fellowships will provide opportunity for scholastic or other training and will range in value from $1,000 to $3,000 a year, according to the nature of the project and the need of the applicant.

Any American who has given evidence of special ability and, for reasons aside from his personal merit, such as racial or cultural background or region of residence, has lacked full opportunity for development of his talents, is eligible. American Negroes, American Indians and persons of Spanish-speaking ancestry are mentioned specifically.

Awards will be made through the agency of competition. They will be made annually on the basis of written application and after comparison of the merits of applicants by the committee of award. The award will be for a full year of serious work and not for special, incidental or temporary projects.

"In spite of the fact that this country offers more widespread opportunities than any other nation", said Mr. Whitney, "many Americans of great potential ability are kept from their full development. This means a loss not only to the individuals concerned but to the country as a whole. We hope these fellowships will contribute to the broadening of opportunities for all Americans."

In 1933, against all odds, a Canadian ski team blazed to Alpine victory!

Gusts of snow swirled around the mountains at St. Moritz, Switzerland. It was the day of the relay race in the International University Ski Championships. And for the first time Canada was competing . . . racing against many of western Europe's finest skiers.

The unfamiliar Alpine snow took its toll of the Canadians. The fourth-lap skier lagged eight minutes behind the leading Italian teams . . . and faced a steep 1,800-foot climb. But at the storm-blown summit amazed officials saw him sweep in—only 30 seconds behind the leaders. With half a minute to make up, the fifth Canadian streaked into the last lap—a 3,000-foot plunge into the valley. He flashed past the favourites one by one . . . and crossed the line a winner by 45 seconds!

Good sportsmanship has won many world friends for Canada . . . just as the spirit of working together has made us one of the world's great nations. These two, sportsmanship and enterprise, keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

The Canadian Ski Championships, together with events of the North American and International University Championships will be held this year at Banff from Feb. 4 to March 5.

CLASS IN COOKERY

one-third cup sweetened condensed milk three cups graham cracker crumbs
one-half cup chopped dates
one-half cup chopped toasted almonds

Blend all ingredients together thoroughly. Drop mixture, by the teaspoon, on a buttered baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for about fifteen minutes, then remove from oven at once and allow to cool.

Mrs. I. Weinberg,

410 Richview Avenue, Toronto.

BAKED FISH, SPANISH STYLE

one medium-sized onion, sliced three tablespoons butter
two tablespoons flour
one and one-quarter cups tomato juice two pounds halibut
one-half seeded green pepper, minced
one teaspoon salt
pepper
one-half teaspoon sugar

Saute onion slices in butter until tender; then stir in flour. Add all remaining ingredients except fish, and simmer, stirring constantly until thickened. Wash and dry fish carefully; arrange it in a shallow baking dish, pouring the sauce over it. Bake uncovered, in a moderate oven of 350°F. for thirty minutes, or until fish flakes readily. Salmon steaks may be used instead of halibut.

Mrs. Sydney M. Silverman,

5890 Cote St. Antoine Road, Montreal.

Oldest Synagogue Has First Event In 20 Years

The Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, in New York, the oldest Jewish congregation on the North American continent, held a bazaar to raise $25,000 toward the construction of a modern community center adjoining the temple at 2 West Seventieth Street.

The Rev. Dr. David de Sola Pool, rabbi of the congregation, and four generations of a family of the congregation took part in the ribbon-cutting ceremony, after which more than 250 persons crowded into the L. Napoleon Levy Auditorium, where twenty-five display counters were heaped with contributed merchandise.

The family honored are descendants of L. Napoleon Levy, who died in 1921 after twenty-eight years as president of the congregation. They are his widow, his daughter, Mrs. Harold L. Lewis; his granddaughter, Mrs. Richard J. Cohn; and his great-grandson, Lewis F. Schlossinger.

The bazaar was the first such event at the synagogue in twenty years. One of the features was a Booth of All Nations manned by members of the congregation dressed in native costumes of various foreign lands. The more than 700 members of the congregation, whose origins represent about fifty nationalities, have contributed products and artistic objects made in these foreign countries.

The present synagogue building which is one of the few in America designed along classic Greek lines, is fifty-two years old. The congregation dates back to 1655 when a small colony of Jews migrated to Niew Amsterdam.

Another feature of the bazaar was a "Cafe Society" restaurant serving kosher meals throughout the event. Other guests of honor included Miss Gurli Lie, daughter of Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary General, and Mrs. Abraham H. Feller, wife of the director of the U.N. Legal Department.

Most people today know about diseases caused by nutritional deficiencies and about rewards in health and welfare for those who eat balanced meals. However, many of them cannot be bothered to make the effort to break away from their old habits, they refuse to act wisely even though they know the facts.

IN MEMORIAM

MAX KELNER: In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Max Kelner, who passed away December 14, 1945, (25th day in Teveth).

His charming ways and smiling face,
Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

Ever remembered by his wife, Lillian; and family.

BARKIN: In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Cantor Abraham Barkin, who passed away so suddenly on the 25th day of Teveth (January 15, 1939).

We think of him in silence,
His name we oft recall,
There is nothing left to answer,
But his picture on the wall.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by his wife, Sonia; and children, Leo, Harry, Sara, Jacob, and George.

75th ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL CANADIAN BANK

The 75th. annual general meeting of the shareholders of the National Canadian Bank was held in Montreal, on Tuesday, January 10, at the head office of the Bank, under the chairmanship of C. E. Gravel.

The report of the Board of Directors for the financial year ending November 30, 1949, which was submitted by the general manager, Charles St-Pierre, discloses that the Bank has achieved further progress.

Profits for the year, showing a gain of $60,529 over the previous year, amounted to $1,374,709. After provisions for federal and provincial taxes, contribution of $150,000 to the staff pension fund, amortization of bank premises and payment of dividends, the credit balance of Profit and Loss Account increased from $487,515 to $545,789.

Deposits, having gained more than 22 and a half million dollars during the year, reached the all-time high of $414,383,123. Savings deposits, the sum of which had more than doubled between 1943 and 1948, showed a further rise from 285 to 295 and a half million during the past year.

The notes of the Bank in circulation, on November 30, 1949, amounted to $541,592. This item appears for the last time on the balance sheet. On or before January 31 of this year, the chartered banks must remit to the Bank of Canada a sum equal to that of their notes outstanding which will thereafter be paid by the Bank of Canada at any time, on presentation. The double liability of bank shareholders will then be definitely abrogated.

Total assets of the Bank aggregate $430,120,124, a new high record. Cash assets of $67,721,108 represents 16.31% of liabilities to the public. Quick assets at $281,923,315 are equal to 67.93% of liabilities to the public.

Current loans and discounts amount to $132,188,625 against $136,901,819 on November 30, 1948. This slight decrease is accounted for by a lessening in the Bank's advances for forestry operations which have declined to the extent of 10%, in the Province of Quebec, during 1949 compared with 1948. It may be interesting to point out that the amount of the Bank's current loans and discounts has doubled in the last four years. The Bank's investments are shown at $210,536,117, a gain of $22,862,758.

After mentioning certain facts which justify one to look to the future with confidence, Mr. St-Pierre added that, however, one's optimism should be reasoned and restrained, for prudence is more imperative than ever because of the uncertainty of the factors that will determine the degree of economic activity in our country during the present year.

The president, C. E. Gravel, called the attention of the shareholders to the fact that the report which had just been submitted refers to the 75th. year of the Bank and that such an anniversary should not be allowed to pass without taking a glance at the past years. He then showed the progress achieved by the Bank since the modest beginnings of La Banque d'Hochelaga. He gave an outline of general business conditions and laid stress on the remarkable development of the Province of Quebec in the last few years.

The president made comments on the external trade of Canada and on the factors which hamper the resumption of international trade, and he remarked that, despite the numerous favorable aspects of the situation in Canada, the future does not fail to arouse some concern in the minds of certain observers. At the close of his address, the president paid tribute to the memory of one of the directors of the Bank, Hon. C. P. Beaubien, who died during the past year, and spoke in praise of his successor, Hon. Wilfred Gagnon.

The shareholders reelected the Board of Directors as follows: L. J. Adjutor Amyot, Armand Chaput, Auguste Desilets, K. C., Hon. J. M. Dessureault, Geo. T. Donohue, Hon. Wilfred Gagnon, C. E. Gravel, Charles Laurendeau, K. C., Beaudry Leman, A. J. Major, Hon. Jacob Nicol, Hon. Alphonse Raymond, Leo G. Ryan and Charles St-Pierre.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

Bearing Our Burdens

Any man can be a hero when things go right. The test of genuine heroism is our behaviour when things go wrong. Every life is made up of successes and failures, achievements, and disappointments. This problem of human sorrow and suffering was dealt with by rabbis in a most unique manner. Rabbinic tradition has it that the world was not completed by one creative act; the universe did not spring into being as perfect. The world is a growing world. It is ever developing and because this is an unselfish universe, man's mission is to help bring it into perfection; the evil and tragedy in the world will diminish and even some day disappear.

Man, say the rabbis, is a partner with God. Man is the world. Man therefore, is not to hold God responsible for all the suffering. For the most part, man himself is responsible for the evil in this world. Man, violating the laws of God, brings self-made evil. Man's inhumanity to man brings misery to all concerned.

Yet a great truth concerning sorrow must ever be kept in mind. Sorrow is often a great discipline. Beauty of character is made possible by pain. The sweetest berries in all the world are found in Alaska and not in sunny Florida. The artistic hammering upon bronze yields the beautiful figures found on European cathedral doors. There is still another truth concerning sorrow. Our joyful experiences are greater, but because these come so frequently and so regularly, we have come to take them for granted. Thus it is that we hardly ever pause to question: "Why am I happy?" "Why am I blessed?"

The discovery we can make if we study the matter closely is that no worthwhile life is free from overcoming handicap. The best people are those who themselves have tasted the bitter cup. The best people are those who had to take life's second best and build upon it. This they succeeded in doing by taking a positive attitude in facing difficulty. It is poor technique, indeed, to complain about life's difficulties! The story is told of Ole Bull, the great musician, who in the midst of a concert performance discovered that the "A" string of his violin snapped. He nevertheless carried on, transposed the composition, and finished on three strings amidst thunderous applause.

What we must learn to do is to accept ourselves and our limitations and make the very best, all that we possibly can, out of life. Undaunted, unafraid, and with faith we can surmount many, if not all, of the obstacles on life's pilgrimage. The most important element, yes, is faith and without it successful creative living is impossible. Verily, the biblical sage was right when he laid down the principle, "The righteous man liveth by his faith."

normalize Jewish life everywhere. The concept of galut (exile) will gradually disappear from Jewish consciousness. There will be far more of confidence and dignity in Jewish life, much less of strain and tension, much less of running away from one's self, which characterized the lives of so many of our people, especially among the intellectuals and upper classes in Western Europe.

"The sense of uprootedness will pass, and with it the sense of inferiority and self-hate. There will be less obsession with anti-Semitism and with apologetics. The reconstituted Jewish state, if it will remain true to the essential . . . character of historic Israel, will come to exercise a stimulating influence in world Jewry as well as a unifying one."

Former recipients of the Cardozo Award have been Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, Bernard M. Baruch, and the late Associate Justice Frank Murphy.

COLLEGE ACCEPTS,

Lafayette, which was founded in 1826, was named for the Marquis de Lafayette, who was a spokesman for religious tolerance in eighteenth century France and, with his descendants, was granted permanent American citizenship for his services to the United States in the Revolution.

Mr. Dumont took a civil engineering degree from Lafayette in 1889 and a Master of Science degree in 1895. He founded and was director of a number of trust companies, and was a consulting engineer for mining companies.

He was appointed United States Consul at Guadeloupe in 1911 and later was consul at Madrid, Florence, Dublin and Frankfurt. He served as consul general at Frankfurt and at Havana. He was State Department representative at National Foreign Trade Council meetings from 1925 through 1929, was chief of the consular commercial office in the State Department at Washington and was United States delegate and chairman of the Pan-American Commission for the standardization and simplification of consular invoice procedure. He was the author of "Inland Waterways From New York to Key West." Mr. Dumont had lived at Ronks, Pa., near Lancaster.

At the time of Judge Bowman's decision, David Skillman, attorney for the college, had announced that the gift would be accepted, although the college did not like "strings that smack of religious discrimination," because "refusal would be depriving other boys of the benefits." The action of the board has overruled that decision.

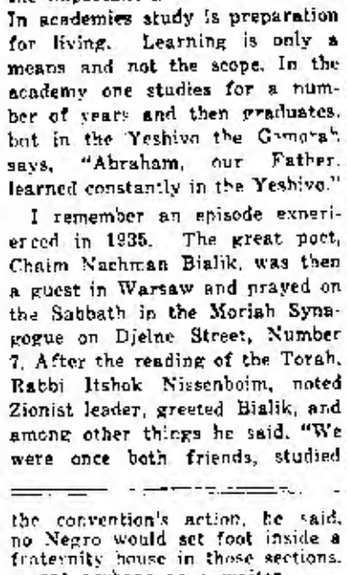
sion, the delegates censured the Wisconsin chapter for allegedly violating an agreement requiring chapters to approach the national fraternity before formulating local membership policy.

At an earlier meeting, the Lambda delegate from the University of Texas charged that the admission of Negroes would be harmful to the fraternity's growth and prestige, particularly in the South and Southwest. In spite of the convention's action, he said, no Negro would set foot inside a fraternity house in those sections, except perhaps as a waiter.

He implied further that if the delegates ignored his argument his chapter might secede from the fraternity. Later, he said he did not mean to threaten the convention.

The convention ended with a dinner at which Senator Herbert H. Lehman was presented with a scroll for his humanitarian services. Officers elected include Albert I. Cornsweet of Cleveland, president; Leonard P. Aries, of Washington, D. C.; and Dr. William Ginsburg, of Denver, Col., vice-presidents.



A Spark Of Slabodka In Montreal

By J. Giladi-Gelbfarb, Of Montreal

The first academy (institute for highher learning) was founded in Greece in the fourth century of the Christian era. The founder was the great Grecian philosopher Plato, and the students were well selected and rich. The earlier Jewish cultural institution is somewhat older. According to the Talmud, Father Abraham was already a Yeshivo man. He studied, according to calculation, 3,500 years ago.

The Yeshivo commenced with the first Jew and has continued until the present day. The students in our Yeshivoth were not only sons of the rich. The Yeshivo was and remained a folk institution, and the poor students were in the majority. The support of the Yeshivo did not come from a few rich donors. It actually came from the entire Jewish community, rich and poor alike. The story of the Chofetz Chaim is known wherein he undertook to collect funds for the Yeshivo of Radin and a wealthy Jew offered him the entire sum of his objective. The Chofetz Chaim declined the offer, because in such a mitzvah the entire community must participate. Our sages have said: Whoever supports the students of the Torah will deserve to sit in the "Yeshivo shel malo."

What did the students learn in the Yeshivo? They learned Torah. Not so much Bible, Prophets and Commentaries, as they learned Talmud and its Commentaries. In this regard Orthodox Jews based their opinion on that of Rabbi Eliezer, who, before his death, told his students to concentrate on the study of Gemorah and Tosafus to sharpen their heads and as far as the Bible was concerned, intone the portion of week. In a chapter of Tanach it is known that the Gemorah mentions it in various parts.

The students in the Yeshivo, principally, were not prepared for life, because learning the Torah was for Jews real life, because the entire Jewish Kium is based on studying the Torah. Torah is the important axis of Jewish life. In academies study is preparation for living. Learning is only a means and not the scope. In the academy one studies for a number of years and then graduates, but in the Yeshivo the Gemorah says, "Abraham, our Father, learned constantly in the Yeshivo."

I remember an episode experienced in 1935. The great poet, Chaim Nachman Bialik, was then a guest in Warsaw and prayed on the Sabbath in the Moriah Synagogue on Djelna Street, Number 7. After the reading of the Torah, Rabbi Itshok Nissenboim, noted Zionist leader, greeted Bialik, and among other things he said. "We were once both friends, studied together in Woloshner Yeshivo, but since that our ways parted. Bialik left the Yeshivo in another world".

Bialik replied, "I have never left the Yeshivo. I still stand with both feet in the Yeshivo." Bialik remained all his days a man of the Yeshivo. Especially the last few years of his life, Bialik often insisted on the importance of the Yeshivos in Jewish life. I once heard him speak on education. He compared the learning of Torah by Jews and study by nations of the world, and returning to Yeshivot he exclaimed with pathos, "Protect these institutions!" In his important poem, "Hamasmid", Bialik describes the Yeshivo "as the house in which the character of the nation is being developed", and says further, "Who has hidden in pages a charm? With what power is the word penetrated, to light in dark eyes the flames of hearts wounded, shooting sparks? Tell me Rabbi, do you hear, do you feel the great love which burns with passion?"

I am myself a product of the Yeshivo and of the Polish Government Seminar. In both institutions I studied for the same number of years, and yet, the seminary, although finer and more imposing, most of its teachers being graduates of universities, has not left many memories in my life. But the modest Yeshivo with its sad song, and unlimited suffering, accompanies me through my entire life. The critical conversations with the head of the Yeshivo, his pale countenance, his eyes closed during preaching, the sadness which suffused his creased forehead have all remained imprinted in my memory. I still hear his words, I still feel his groan, and it still influences me.

With honor and love I recollect the name of the Rosh-Yeshivo once when Yeshivos still flourished in the old home, and the disputes about whether to teach Musar (moral teachings) or not. These disputes have long since belonged to the long past. Those Yeshivos do not exist any more; gone is the Yeshivo in Telz, Radum or Slobodka. Only ashes remain.

Only a spark of Slobodka has reached us in Montreal, this is the newly established Yeshivo, "Maor Hagolah", with her Rosh-Yeshivo, the learned Rabbi Efraim Oshry. This Yeshivo truly deserves to be written about because it represents an exceptional institution, both in its manner of teaching, and its student material consisting exclusively of orphans who were saved from the crematories of the Nazis.

A fine atmosphere prevails in this Yeshivo, an atmosphere of modesty and holy purity. The voice of Torah rings day and night, but the Yeshivo is not secure because its debts are great and pressing, and Jewish Montreal has not yet shown any interest in the institution, the situation of which is grave.

The Rosh-Yeshivo, Rabbi Efraim Oshry, a man in the thirties, great in learning, commences his book, "Divri Efraim", "I have seen with my own eyes". He went through the entire road of martyrs, all the suffering and pain that our brethern in Europe traversed, and escaped by the will of God from the hands of the bandits. I had already heard from various persons of their sufferings and tragic experiences, but when I have heard at Kol-Nidre the words of Rabbi Oshry, I cried like a child.

I don't intend to repeat the content of Rabbi Oshry's address. But I would like to repeat a few words with which he concluded it: "Brothers and Sisters", he exclaimed, "these orphans that have been saved by a miracle from gas ovens, they have actually seen how their parents burned, they have heard the screams and lamentations, and they could grow up with revenge and hatred in their hearts, or, God forbid, lose their minds but actually they study the Torah day and night. Will you deny your interest in them?"

For days and nights the gruelling stories that Rabbi Oshry described rang in my ears, I learned that he refused a rabbinical position in the United States with the reply: "I have assumed the responsibility of being a father to the orphans, and a father does not abandon his children".I visited the Yeshivo only once and was present when Rabbi Oshry [illegible] his students on Torah. It was an hour of delight. The manner in which he imparted his thoughts impressed me greatly. But the community still does not realize the "Maor Hagolah" is an institution which graces our people with its presence.
